Teachers Ask $2,000 Floor

Five-Week School Strike Ends In St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Minn.—(INS)—The St. Paul city council today awaited receipt of a certified charter amendment as 1,165 public school teachers ended their five-weeks-long strike for higher wages and school improvements.

The teachers promised to report for classes in the city's 77 public schools Monday, Jan. 6.

The close of their strike was announced after the city's charter commission took favorable action on an amendment which provides $3,000,000 more annually for school operations.

The amendment now goes to the voters in a special election which the city council said it would call within six weeks.

The teachers made it plain they would retain the right to strike again should the amendment be defeated at the special election.

The salary schedule provides a range of $2,400 to $4,200 for teachers with a bachelor's degree. The present salary range is $1,300 to $2,600.

Association Votes Against $2,400 Minimum.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The Ohio Education association concluded its three-day meeting today after voting a $2,000 annual minimum salary for teachers and a revision of the state's school foundation law providing $32,000,000 to $33,000,000 additional state aid to schools.

The proposed foundation law change would make possible teacher pay hikes of $400 to $800 a year, OEA officials estimated.

The OEA assembly also endorsed a proposal for a 30 per cent increase in state foundation funds for the first six months of 1947 to be obtained through emergency legislation costing the state an additional $8,500,000.

$2,400 Request Rejected.

In voting the $2,000 minimum, the OEA rejected a $2,400 salary and two foundation revisions which would have boosted annual outlays of $95,000,000 and $100,000,000.

The approved foundation plan would boost state aid to $91,000,000-$92,000,000 annually from the present $59,000,000.

The assembly also endorsed state support of adult education and asked legislation which would again permit special elections for school operating levies.

Vallance President.

Dr. H. F. Vallance, director of Miami university's teacher replacement bureau, was elected OEA president. John J. Young, Rocky River school superintendent, was re-elected vice president and Robert B. Oldfather, Painesville, and Merrill P. Cooley, Warren, were named to the executive committee.

NAME AIR FIRM IN NEW SUIT

Another involuntary bankruptcy against the Harrington aviation interests was on file in federal district court at Cleveland today as efforts were being made to save the Harrington Air Service, Inc.

Latest proceeding was filed against the Harrington Manufacturing companuy by Atty. Homer C Clark of Mansfield on behalf of three creditors who claim unpaid debts totaling $2,609.35.

Petitioning creditors against the Manufacturing firm and the amounts they claim are Cleveland Pneumatic Tool company of Cleveland, $437.28, National Allied Products company of Cleveland, $1,-85.40, and the Taylor-Winfield corporation of Warren, $316 67.

An involuntary bankruptcy petition against Harrington Air Service, Inc., was filed Nov. 9 on behalf of four northern Ohio creditors who claimed unpaid debts totaling $2,712 65.

Yesterday Atty. C. H. Henkel, representing the Air Service branch of the Harrington interests, filed with the court a petition for arrangement which may result in per centage payment of debts to all creditors and leave the company intact.

Next step in the legalities will be a hearing on the petition for arrangement before Carl D. Freibolin, bankruptcy referee, who will hear proof of claims from the creditors and certify to the court his approval or disapproval of the company's proposed arrangements.

Meanwhile, pending in Richland county's common pleas court are a number of suits against the

REECE'S 'NO THANKS' NIPS STASSEN PLAN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A polite "No thanks" from GOP chairman Carroll Reece left Harold E. Stassen's Republican open forums on their own today, without financial aid or direction from the national committee.

In rejecting an offer by Stassen for the national committee to take over the forums, Reece said it would cost too much money and might create intra-party dissension.

Wind Sways Car Off Road; One Injured

A strong wind was blamed today for a traffic accident on U. S. Route 30-N which resulted in injuries to one person and destruction of a car by fire.

Alvin S. Beverage, 24, Mansfield, R. D. 3, told police he lost control of his automobile while driving two miles west of Mansfield at 5:30 a. m., when the wind swayed the vehicle off the road.

The car crashed into a field and then caught fire. Beverage said he did not know how the car caught fire. His wife, Wanda, 20, was taken to General hospital and released after treatment.

MOTHER AND BABY BURNED TO DEATH

COLUMBUS — (INS) — The attempt of a young housewife to rekindle a stove with kerosene resulted today in the death of Mrs. Leona Marshall, 22, and her five-month-old son, Leonard Arthur.

Flames destroyed the three-room cottage of Mrs. Marshall and her husband, Clifford, 32, yesterday afternoon when the stove apparently exploded.

Mrs. Marshall was found lying in the yard with her clothes almost completely burned off. She died early today in a hospital. The infant burned to death in the house as flames prevented his rescue.

Two other Marshall children, Annie May, 5, and Mary Lee, 3, escaped without injury. Their father was at work when the fire occurred.

BUTTER, EGGS TO DROP THREE CENTS MONDAY

Price Decline Expected to Be General As Bigger Stores Announce Cut.

The price of butter in Mansfield will drop three cents a pound Monday, while at the same time eggs will be reduced three cents a dozen in Mansfield supermarkets.

Retail grocers' spokesmen explained the reduction by the sudden plunge in prices in Chicago wholesale markets. During the last three days, the wholesale price of butter in Chicago has dropped nearly 10 cents a pound.

Butter will sell at large markets here for 78 cents a pound, while one large national chain store will sell medium-size eggs for 49 cents a dozen.

Spokesmen said smaller grocery outlets are expected to follow suit within a few days.

* * *

Other Prices Cut.

Meanwhile, Mansfield department stores brought out their dusty "bargain counters" as year-end sales brought reductions ranging up to 50 per cent.

Department store executives attributed the price drops, which they emphasized probably were temporary, to general post-Christmas inventory clearances and a desire to "clean out" wartime manufactured items to make way for new goods.

"It's just an adjustment period," manager of a large retail goods company said. "We're hoping for better goods, and are offering bargains to post-Christmas shoppers to clear out excess inventories."

Store executives were emphatic in stating that the flurry of reduced prices was not indicative of a "recession" or of a "seller's market."

The Associated Press quoted economists as believing that "the boom still is under way."

Dr. Melchoir Palyi of the Central Life Insurance company, said bulges in the price line were being "straightened out" by reductions in luxury item prices, but that the general trend still was upward.

FIRE DESTROYS IBERIA MANSION

IBERIA—The old Flint mansion, Iberia landmark for many years, was destroyed by fire early today.

The Clarence Meek family, who occupy the house, were awakened at 2:15 a. m. by a passing motorist who had seen flames around the chimney.

The Galion fire department fought the blaze for several hours. Neighbors of the Meeks were successful in saving most of the contents of the house.

Meek paid tribute to the Galion fire department and to the Galion telephone operator, who aroused nearby neighbors.

The house, built in 1857, was valued at more than $10,000. It was owned by Elmer Coe, of Columbus.

Cold Wave Heads For City Area

High winds which buffeted the Mansfield area last night and today are due to taper off tonight as a new cold wave covers the state, dropping the mercury to around the 10-degree mark.

Light snow was forecast for most of the state tonight and flurries will continue tomorrow near Lake Erie, the weatherman said.

The mercury climbed to 54 degrees in Mansfield last night while some Ohio cities reported records broken for Dec. 27. It was 60 at Sandusky, warmest on record for the date, and 59 at Cleveland, also a record.

* * *

THE MERCURY DROPPED to 36 at noon today in Mansfield and was due to continue its skid this afternoon and tonight as frigid blasts blow in from Canada.

Heavy snow fell today over the northern Great Lakes, Alpena, Mich., reporting 12 inches.

County Engineer Walter E. Rusk reported that damage estimated at $30 was caused last night to canvas and wooden forms at a repair job on the Olivesburg-Fitchville road when the wind blew canvas over some flare pots, starting a fire.

LEXINGTON FIRM GETS LAKE JOB

The Mansfield board of control yesterday agreed to award the land clearing contract for the Clear Fork lake project to John Richardson and M. P. Teter, partners, of Lexington. Their bid was low at $73,800.

Service-Safety Director William W. Enlow said legislation passed by city council Monday sets up a Jan. 24 award date.

On the basis of the legislation, $74,000 appropriated for the contract will not be available until that date, he said.

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn and Enlow constitute the city's board of control.

Three other bids for the clearing contract ranged from $75,600 to $88,900.

Enlow said clearing work probably would begin about a week after the contract is let. It is to be completed by Sept. 30 of next year.

Construction of a dam for the project, designed to triple the city's water supply, is already under way and most of the land for the reservoir has been purchased.

U. S. AGAIN OFFERS TO SELL PIPELINES

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The War Assets Administration today asked new bids for outright purchase of the $147,000,000 big and little inch pipelines running from the Texas Panhandle to the New York-Philadelphia area.

The government-owned lines were offered for use in transporting natural gas or petroleum and its products, or a combination of both.

WAA said bids must be received not later than noon, Feb. 8, 1947, and will be publicly opened February 10.

Limited was back in operation today after six cars of the Chicago-to-New Orleans streamliner hurtled from the rails yesterday, injuring more than two score passengers and trainmen, none seriously. Among those hurt was Harry Wismer, ABC sports broadcaster, en route to New Orleans to broadcast the Sugar Bowl football game on New Year day. Persistent Squirrels Hide Nuts In Attic; Defy Eviction Until Cat Goes to Work

Park Supt. Frank Burton reports there's a hollow tree shortage. And the squirrels are objecting.

A bevy of red, nut-happy bushy-tails took the problem in their own paws and invaded the attic of a Wellington avenue home.

Burton said a cat, a tree-trimmer and two metal plates had to be put into play in order to "evict" them.

* * *

THE PARK DEPARTMENT WAS CALLED out when K. D. Cadigan, whose property abutts South park, got tired of playing peek-a-boo with a bunch of the bushy-tailed nut-hiders.

They had gnawed two holes in the roof of his Wellington avenue home and were rapidly filling the attic with a winter's supply of nuts.

Burton said that Cadigan would chase the gang of squirrels out one hole and they'd come tumbling back in the other one—15 feet away—with more nuts!

* * *

THE PROBLEM WAS PARTIALLY SOLVED when Ed Jefferies, park department employe, enlisted the aid of his squirrel-chasing cat. The cat chased the squirrels out of the attic.

Then Jefferies, working with Cadigan, cut off the invaders' avenue of approach by trimming back a tree near the home.

Next, two metal plates were used to cover the roof holes and lock out the unwanted guests.

The Cadigans now have their fingers crossed. And they have their ears cocked, Burton says, for the sound of rolling nuts—the signal that the "evictees" are back.

Driver Would Adopt Baby Left In Taxi by Mother

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Taxi Driver Edwin Nichols wants to adopt baby Gail Elizabeth, left him by a passenger who admitted she didn't have $1.25 to pay her fare.

The 43-year-old taxi driver, who says a young woman passenger gave him the baby five weeks ago after declaring she was homeless, has a wife and two teen-age daughters. He has asked the Hamilton county child welfare board for permission to adopt the baby.

Mrs. Luella Eastman, a board spokesman, said a decision could not be made until completion of investigation and a police search for Gail Elizabeth's mother.

* * *

NICHOLS SAID HE TOOK A man and woman, who claimed to operate a nursery, to a cafe where the couple approached a young woman and insisted that she claim her baby because the nursery bill was $40 in arrears.

He took the young woman to pick up the child. It was then she told him she was homeless, didn't have any place to take the baby or money to pay the $1.25 taxi fare, Nichols said.

He took the baby to his home and the young woman to a hotel where he rented a room for her. Learning the woman was hungry, he went to a nearby restaurant for sandwiches but on his return the woman was gone. She left this note:

"Take care of Gail Elizabeth. You may never see me again."

ATTACKS STEPPED UP

PEIPING —(AP)— Chinese Communists today stepped up their fierce attacks on three sides of Paoting capital of Hopeh province.

U. S. EYES LAND IN ANTARCTICA

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The United States stood ready today to press a claim for sovereignty over huge sections of Antarctia if some other power should assert it has an exclusive right to any part of the unknown territory.

A statement of U. S. policy was issued by the state department as expeditions from American shores and foreign lands raced to establish claim to the frigid icecap.

Thus far no official statement has been made as to what the competing countries hope to find in the huge ice-covered continent. The most glib explanation is evidence of huge uranium deposits underneath. Others contend that operation in the trea may establish tests of polar equipment and military operations.

Whatever the reason, Russia, Australia, Britain, Argentina and Chile are reported in or about to enter the race. The U. S. expedition is believed to have the lead on most of the others.

The statement of U. S. policy on claims to territory in the ice-capped land was inspired by reports of a controversy over a British expedition which settled in Marguerite bay during the war.

It was set up near a station established in the 1940-41 expedition of Commander Richard E. Byrd, the most pretentious up to that time. Huts, mechanical equipment and supplies were hurriedly left when approaching winter forced a departure.

Recently the state department asked London to find out the condition of this equipment. This has been done, with the warning, however, that the seal situation was bad—not enough to supply the men and dogs of both nations.

'Extraordinary' Mother Selected

HAGERSTOWN, Ind. — (UP) — The Hagerstown Weekly Exponent today awarded the title of "Mother Extraordinary of 1946" to Mrs. Marion Pollock, 24, Columbus, O.

It said Mrs. Pollock won the title when she declined a six-month tour of 20 American cities after winning a "Mrs. America" contest, in order to remain at home with her four youngsters.

MAN, 84, SLAIN WITH CHISEL; MAID WHIPPED

CHICAGO — (UP) — Two hard-bitten murderers who drove a chisel into the skull of a wealthy 84-year-old retired businessman and viciously gun-whipped his elderly house maid still were at large today.

The slayers struck when their burglary of a palatial lake front home in suburban Wilmette was interrupted by Otto E. Freund, formerly the head of a Chicago engraving company, and Miss Marie Held, 51, the maid.

Freund was stabbed in the head nine times, apparently with a chisel he had been using to repair his grandson's broken Christmas toys. The handle of the chisel was found beside his body, along with a sliver of bright metal shaved from the chisel blade.

* * *

Meager Details.

Miss Held lay critically injured in a hospital, her skull fractured in four places. During intermittent spells of consciousness she gave police meager details.

Two men, she said, appeared at the home of Clarence Freund, the dead man's son with whom he lived, at 1:30 p. m. They asked who was at home and Miss Held said she told them, "the elder Mr. Freund and myself."

Miss Held said the men shoved her back into the house, and drew their guns. "They pushed me to the fireplace and beat me on the head with the end of their guns," she told officers

* * *

Guns Sought.

The maid said she heard Freund coming upstairs from his basement workshop, but lost consciousness and did not see him approach the men.

Police believed the bandits demanded Freund accompany them upstairs and disclose the hiding place of his daughter-in-law's jewelry. When he refused, police figured, the assassins grabbed the chisel he had carried from the workshop and struck him several times in the head and beat him with their guns until he collapsed.

Miss Held said after she "came to" she crawled to a rear basement door and tried to unlock the screen. The slayers found her there and again beat her unconscious.

A 12-year-old German police dog, also in the house, was cowed by the bandits and later locked in a bathroom.

STAR OF CAIRO FALLS ON MUD FLAT IN EIRE

Explosion 'Disintegrates' TWA Constellation; 10 Others Hurt.

BULLETIN

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind.—(UP)—Two persons were killed and 19 injured today when an American Airlines plane developed engine trouble and made a crash landing in a flower garden. The dead were the pilot and co-pilot, who were identified by the airline as Capt. Frank Hamm, jr., Chicago, and Harmon E. Ring, Chicago.

SHANNON, Eire—(UP)—A TWA Constellation passenger plane, Star of Cairo, crashed and exploded on a mud flat in the River Fergus as it approached Shannon airport on the Paris-New York flight today and 13 of the 23 passengers aboard were killed.

The other 10 persons aboard the crack airliner were injured, some so critically that it was feared they would die.

(The Associated Press said 12 persons were killed and 11 injured, seven critically.)

The plane crashed on a mud flat island in the Fergus about three miles from the huge Shannon airport, exploding with such force that the dead and living were scattered about a 50-yard radius.

Flames shot more than 50 feet into the air from the ship's blazing fuel tanks. The crash occurred about 2 a. m. as the plane came in for a routine landing from Paris.

* * *

Buildings Shaken.

The plane carried 14 passengers and a crew of nine. Ten passengers were killed and three members of the crew.

The crash was witnessed by flight control officers at Shannon who reported that the explosion shook airport buildings.

It was two hours before rescue crews reached the scene after struggling through reedy marshes, mud flats and the small streams which criss-cross the boggy area.

* * *

Plane Disintegrated.

Dr. James O'Boyle, airport physician and one of the first to reach the wrecked liner, said that it was "completely disintegrated."

Two children, a four and a half months old baby from Newark, N. J., and a 12-year-old French student who lives in New York were among the survivors. The baby escaped serious injury.

Survivors paid high tribute to pretty Vina Kay Ferguson, hostess aboard the plane whose coolness and calm nerves were credited with saving most of those who survived.

Today's accident was the first fatal crash ever suffered at the Great Shannon airport and was the first time any passenger had been killed in the crash of a Constellation.

British Plane Missing

RIO DE JANEIRO —(INS)— The newspaper Amanha reported today that a British air liner en route from Rio de Janeiro to Europe with 18 passengers aboard has not reported arrival at its destination.

The Associated Press listed the dead passengers as Simone Lucienne Clere, Paris; Pierre Drayfus, New York; Herman Koegel, New York; Allan Charles Lanyon, Washington; Maurice Simon Picard, Flushing, N. Y.; Alexander H. Pekelis, Larchmont, N. Y.; Francis Joseph Salabert, Paris; Marie Zelaznagora, New York.

The dead crewmen were listed as Herbert Burmeister, flight engineer, Washington, Walter McBride, flight engineer, Alexandria, Va., and Robert A. Osterburg, navigator, Alexandria, Va.

Broadway

By Dorothy Kilgallen

Bewilderment of Broadway—I've just spent a fascinating few days investigating business on Broadway, trying to find the answer to the million-dollar question: Are we having a depression? The answer is yes, no, and maybe. We seem to be having a depression, a recession, a boom, a slump and a spell of old-fashioned noralcy. It all depends on what sampler of trends is speaking at the moment, and which end of the telescope is glued to his eye.

The general picture is as wildly contradictory as a Picasso in a Victorian frame, but here it is.

A diamond merchant says: "The diamond business has fallen flat on the ashcan."

A wholesale jeweler with offices around the block away reports:

"I don't know where they're getting all this talk about a depression. I'm enjoying my best Christmas business in ten years. It was never this good during the war."

At lunch time, during the past few days, chic and expensive restaurants like the Colony, the Stork Club and 21 were jammed as I have never seen them. The Stork Club had all three rooms—the Main room, the Loner's Room, and the Cub Room which is reserved for women in the daytime—working at top speed, and as soon as a table emptied it was filled again. Twenty-one, newly enlarged, was humming with customers.

But at night the gin mills, the "dives" and the beer joints along Second and Third Aves. have a lonely and dispirited look. A year ago, most of them had thirsty patrons lined up at the bar two deep. Now many of them echo to the use of the jukebox and the talk of five or six customers from the neighborhood.

Most furriers admit that business is off in ther line, and one predicted to me that by Spring mink coats will cost only a third as much as they do now. Costumics have not fallen off at all.

But for the first itme since the war days of mad buying, wholesale dress houses are getting returns of merchandise. Theater ticets to the hits are not easy to get, but they are easier. Now it is possible to get scarce pasteboards from the $7 scalper instead of the $10 scalper.

* * *

Leo Lindy, proprietor of what is unquestionably the most famous restaurant on the Great White Way, says:

"You could say business is slightly off. I think this is the reason: There people are eating at home because now they can get all the food supplies they want.

"I have noticed that the early morning hours—around 2 and 3 a.m.—are off, so I presume the boys must be suffering. We used to get a lot of our late trade from them.

"If strikes don't continue, if labor and capital get together, business during the coming year will be good. If they don't lots of people will be out of work and all business will be off."

Another West Side restaurateur, former prize fighter Bob Hope:

"Business is off, without question, but the good restaurants have been hit less than the nightclubs and the side street spots.

"Most places miss the returning doughboy's trade. But increased tourist patronage should make up for that.

"I've cut the price of roast beef 50 cents per portion and I expect to be able to make other menu reductions."

Herman Billingsley is sanguine about the state of the world in the vicinity of Fifth Ave. and 53rd St. "Here at the Stork Club business is as good now as it was a year ago," he says. "There is confusion because of the labor situation, and the European situation. Things will be better when these basic factors are settled, and I believe we will have at least five years of prosperity."

And super-optimistic is Lou Walters, mogul of the Latin Quarter, which is a big girl-show nitery catering to the crowd that wants food, music and lavish entertainment at popular prices.

"It aggravates me when I hear all this talk about night club business being off," Lou said. "The only reason for this ridiculous talk is that night club owners have short memories. They're making comparisons to last year's business which was unusually high because so many servicemen were returning from overseas, but they're forgetting about the years before that. This is no slump—it is a boom!"

Offering to allow this reporter to examine his books, he cited these figures: in November 1942, the Latin Quarter's intake for the month was $115,000, and this was considered an "upsurge." In 1943 and 1944 the receipts for the same month were $141,000. In 1945, the post-inflationary year when the servicemen were returning and beginning the spots, the November take was $167,000. This November the figure was $160,000.

Janet Bells' SUNDAY IN THE PARK tells about Daddy and David and what they did on the Sunday when they went to the park. David had the most fun. He fed the pigeons. He played ball. David played with another little boy. They rolled the ball to each other. David had fun in the park and you can have fun, too, if you read the book and look at the pictures.

Queenie was a fine dog. So was Bob. But Queenie, Bob and three puppies were TOO MANY DOGS. (by Quail Hawkins). Queenie was Hank's birthday present. Bob just arrived one day and stayed. When Bob was put out he whined and scratched on the outside of the door and Queenie did the same on the inside. There was no real trouble until after the dogs all chased Mr. James up the tree. After that, well too much happened to try to tell. You'll just have to find out yourself.

Back in the days when your Grandmother was a little girl, there lived in Holland a little boy named Gerrit and and an organ grinder named Hans. Gerrit was a good little boy because Mr. Jansen gave him candy to keep him sweet. Hans was always cross and grumpy. He never let anyone turn the handle and make the music come. He never even laughed with the children. Gerrit didn't like Hans very much but when Hans didn't come with his organ Gerrit and all the other children missed him. So Gerrit and Betty and Tommy and Alexander, the dog, went to find him. Poor Hans was very, very sick and had no money to pay the doctor to make him well. Then Gerrit had his idea. He and Betty and Tommy and Alexander would take the organ, make the music and collect the money. Then they would give it to Hans to pay the doctor. When they started out with the organ everything happened so fast that Gerrit became confused. There was a procession in honor of the queen, Betty fell into the canal she got so excited looking at the princes, two kind old ladies gave Betty dry clothes and gave the boys a lot to eat, the Queen talked to them and the princess gave Gerrit a rose. Then, the organ disapperaed and when they found it a little girl was pushing it. GERRIT AND THE ORGAN by Hilda Van Stockum tells about all that and many other things besides what happened when Gerrit had an idea.

GATEWAY by Amelia Walden is a story of school, fun and romance for older girls. Mig Domonkos moved to Gateway when her mother was hired to teach Peyton Marshall. Mig was healthy, self reliant and a little inclined to brag. Peyton was spoiled, lonely and bitter about the accident that had left her crippled. Everyone said that the two girls would be friends but they didn't even like each other. Alan and Barry made everything even more complicated, and it took a school dance and a ski tournament to straighten them out.

COUPLES TO VISIT FLORIDA

WILLARD—Mr. and Mrs. Edd Wiers and son, Norman, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wiers are leaving this week for an extended visit in Bradenton, Fla.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, December 29.

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows a strong stimulus for the energies and faculties, with a quick urge to determined and concentrated effort of beckoning projects or new plans and programs. Yet there is distinct danger from a too abrupt attack on such factors, with an impulse to snap judgment or a jump in the wrong direction. This might bring about harsh words, misunderstandings or estrangements.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which their alert and quickened spirit of enterprise and initiative, is prodded by excellent openings at hand, luring to decisive action. While the ideas and purpose may be built on practical lines for enduring and constructive futures, yet there is an inner urge to act from impulses and emotions, rather than from calm judgment. This may alienate those ready to cooperate or otherwise inclined to give encouragement. Shun hasty words and deeds.

A child born on this day is well endowed with skills, ideas and plans for success, but high success might be imperiled by ungoverned emotions or impulses.

For Monday, December 30.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a splendid stroke of policy, good sense or perhaps genius, which would turn aside some form of opposition or conflict coming from influential sources. These might be placated by some clever strategies, and undercover agreement or shrewd conformity, in a moment when a sharp answer might beget animosity or open storms or stresses. Fine fortune, expansion and personal happiness depend upon the right word at the right time.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of growth and progress, enhanced prosperity, prestige and personal peace and influence. This, however, depends upon a spirit of compromise, conciliation and subtlety and might be drastically imperiled by rash words, aggravating or provocative conduct, either in personal or business affiliations. Tongue-in-cheek might prove advisable.

A child born on this day has splendid abilities and capacity for a productive and happy life, but an urge to reckless or sharp words and deeds might jeopardize its high success.

Millikan Asserts Government 'Handouts' Hint of Federal Control of Education

By WILLIAM RUTLEDGE II
(Central Press Correspondent)

PASADENA, Cal.—Federal control of education, liquidating one of the most vital and cherished of America's ideals, will become a reality if local communities and individual states do not shoulder the entire responsibility for their schools.

This is the only alternative to dependence on and regulation by the United States government, forewarns one of America's greatest educators, Dr. Robert A. Millikan, world-renowned physicist, Nobel Prize winner, and retired head of California Institute of Technology.

By taking the expedient shortcut to the financial problems of education, via the United States treasury, this nation's vital and cherished ideal of freedom of learning is being by-passed—until it may soon be forgotten, neglected and abandoned. The speed with which American education is driving towards this situation can be arrested only by determined resolve by state and local authorities to finance their institutions.

* * *

DR. MILLIKAN DECLARED that the question is not that of what manner and how much the federal government assists financially; but entirely the question that the United States treasury has become the source of "handouts" to schools. The unavoidable consequence of this continued policy is assuredly regulation of education from Washington, D. C., bureaus.

Aside from the obvious political implications of government financial participation in American education, the Caltech celebrity pointed out, is the much higher cost of federal financing. The cost of bureaucratic administration is a matter for taxpayers to take into consideration, Dr. Millikan said. Federal control of education is bound to lead to taxes higher than those which the states and communities would need to provide the same means.

* * *

THE UNITED STATES TREASURY may be the quickest source of funds; but in the long run will be the most expensive means of undergirding the nation's schools, it is pointed out.

* * *

WHATEVER THE POLITICAL powers in Washington could do for the schools can be done more effectively and less expensively by state and community administration, experience shows. The depression era, the war, and the plan to underwrite educational opportunities for the GI have initiated and encouraged a constantly increasing dependence upon the federal government for the support of schools.

* * *

LOCAL COMMUNITIES should assume full and entire responsibility for the elementary and secondary schools, squarely facing the familiar situation of needs for new and expanded facilities and for higher and more adequate pay for teachers, Dr. Millikan said. Also, the states and private agencies should maintain their free and untrammelled control and financial support of colleges and universities.

The Constitution and American tradition specifically eliminate the federal government from the field of education, with the exception of such institutions as the West Point and Annapolis academies which train officers for the United States Army and Navy.

* * *

FREEDOM OF EDUCATION was so definitely taken for granted during the Revolutionary days that no mention was made of it in the original draft of the Constitution; however, the 10th amendment specifically excludes the United States government from the control of schools.

The easy flow of federal funds is lulling not only the public but school authorities, into an attitude of condoning the trend towards government regulated education. The place to stop the trend, Dr. Millikan asserted, was within the schools, by making them financially independent of assistance from the United States Treasury department.

HE WARNS US—Smiling here, Dr. Robert A. Millikan assures the nation that possibility of federal control of education is no laughing matter.

Formal Clothes Are Required at Supper Dance

By EMIL POST

Although it is true that formal dress is a much less customary exaction than it used to be, the mistake made by the writer of the following letter shows inexcusable lack of thought: "Recently my employer gave me two tickets to a supper dance given by a local organization at a fashionable hotel, which he could not go to. My best beau and I went and wore ordinary street clothes. Upon arriving we found everyone in the most formal evening clothes, so we left hurriedly. Don't you think mention of clothes should have been included on such tickets, which would be bought by anyone who had the price?"

No, I can't imagine how anyone could think that a dance and supper at a "fashionable" hotel could mean anything but evening dress. Whenever an invitation mentions an evening hour and an obviously smart background, evening dress should be taken for granted. As a matter of fact, most of the smart hotels require evening dress for admission to supper rooms on ordinary nights in the week.

Silver Tea Kettles.

Dear Mrs. Post: You make such a point of silver tea kettles. Does this mean that those of us who are unable to buy a proper silver tea kettle will be deprived of having friends visit with us over tea cups?

Answer: It is not at all necessary to have a silver tea kettle. It can perfectly well be a glass one. A glass kettle and the heating element to put under it are among the least expensive household articles that one can buy and the fascination of seeing the water boil fully compensates for any absence of silver.

It Means "White."

Dear Mrs. Post: What is a "snowball" wedding?

Answer: I never have heard of one, but my assistant, Anne Kent, tells me it is one at which the bride's attendants as well as herself wear white. But this—it seems—does not mean that the men have to wear white.

His sideshow "barker" roles, such as he is dressed for in the one photo above, was his best-known movie part. AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

Drive carefully tomorrow—a hospital bed is a poor place to welcome the new year.

One interpretation is that, under the "portal-to-portal" decision, government employes will be entitled to 24-hours-a-day pay—as they are always on their employer's property.

It was Henry Ward Beecher who presented an excellent thought touching on employer-employe relations. He said: "There is not a person we employ who does not, like ouselves, desire recognition, praise, gentleness, forbearance, patience."

Those 'Portal-To-Portal' Lawsuits

IT MAY BE doubted if any stranger situation has ever developed, in the field of organized labor activities, than that now arising out of "portal-to-portal" pay demands by lawyers for various groups making claims under a recent Supreme Court decision based on a Mt. Clemens, Mich., pottery case in which conditions were apparently peculiar to regulations established by that particular industry.

The fabulous sums in "back pay" being asked in some of the suits already filed give an idea that the total may approach six billion dollars, including claims which mignt easily bankrupt some of the firms involved.

Except in association with John L. Lewis' contention as to coal miners, the term, "portal-to-portal", has been unfamiliar to most people, and its general application to industrial employment opens a new field for speculation as to just when the work of an employe starts and stops, and what may be expected of him in the meantime.

It is noteworthy that practically all of the suits thus far filed have been by attorneys for CIO unions, with the AFL at least temporarily withholding action, pending further enlightenment on the whole subject.

It has been pointed out by the trial judge in the Mt. Clemens case that interpretation of the law will be required in specific cases, but if the principle is to apply in some instances it is difficult to see how fairness can be maintained without making it generally applicable—or, as the Toledo Blade puts it: "If some companies are to be ruined by overtime payments they didn't know they owed, the law should ruin other companies, so as not to play favorites."

Cities Move To Curb Drunken Drivers

AROUSED by the number of traffic deaths and casualties associated with observance of Christmas, authorities in practically all large cities have issued a stern warning against drunken driving in connection with year-end celebrations—which are even more likely to involve excessive indulgence in intoxicants.

In Los Angeles, where the traffic toll was more than ordinarily disturbing, the police force is to be put on 16-hour shifts New Year's eve and New Year's day, and the chief of police announces that all drunken drivers and drunken pedestrians found on the streets are to be placed in jail "for safekeeping."

All liquor sales places are to be policed and intoxicated persons coming out of them are to be taken into custody, so as to make sure they do not attempt to drive a car.

Detroit, faced with a similar situation, is also among the big cities that plan extraordinary precautionary measures over the mid-week holiday, because of the orgy of drunken driving following Christmas eve celebrations.

While it is the large cities that are giving particular emphasis to this danger it would seem not amiss for smaller cities—such as Mansfield—to impose greater restraint on drunken driving than has appeared in connection with past New Year's celebrations—in which "personal liberty" has sometimes seemed to be too carefully safeguarded for the public good.

Guarding Orchards Against Pests

THE fruit grower with large orchards, as well as the all-around farmer with a few assorted fruit trees, will be helped by a new agricultural chemical which has been developed for use with ordinary spraying equipment.

This material, made from petroleum and sulphur, protects against fungus growths and insects. It covers the fruit or vegetables with a thin, rubbery film which stretches with growth and which does not need to be removed before the product is marketed.

Climate, planting, and cultivation play important parts in the development of fruits and vegetables for the market, but they all go for naught if the growing product is attacked by any of the many pests which infest the plant world. The farmer, though he may not think of it in that way, has an active, useful partner in the research chemist.

Never Argued With Umpire

WHEN Walter Johnson, one of the greatest of all pitchers, died the other day, most of the comments naturally dwelt on his marvelous speed and his long list of records. Less noticed but perhaps as revealing of the man was the statement that in all his playing years he had never questioned an umpire's decision.

This amazes a fan or player who thinks that the game's motto might well be "Kill the umpire!" It may be one reason why Johnson was so successful. He never raised his blood pressure by vain arguing or risked his cool judgment by indignation over decisions which he thought bad. He took it all as part of the game, estimating that in the long run as many doubtful decisions would fall in his favor as against him. Such good sense is equally applicable outside of baseball.

Change From 'Wash Day' Grind

THE HOUSEWIFE'S laundry problem was complicated during war years by the scarcity of washing machines and lack of competent help. One solution was found in a set-up which housed a number of automatic washers in a store building and furnished soap and hot water to customers bringing their baskets of soiled clothes. The women chatted while the clothes were washing, and then went happily home with their clean laundry.

This idea has now been elaborated upon by the addition of nurseries, smoking rooms, and facilities for shampoo and manicure service. It sounds like a fine way to kill several birds with one stone. Now someone may come forward with a method combining ironing with meal preparation and bathing the baby.

As one of those navy's little newspapers sees it, "It takes two to make a marriage—a single girl and an anxious mother."

Popularity of bubble gum may be merely another manifestation of the inflationary trend.

THE FUTURE APPEARS VERY FUZZY

Demands For 'Portal-to-Portal' Pay Involve Many Legal Angles

By RAYMOND MOLEY

THE MANY suits for portal-to-portal pay may be disastrous to American industry, but they are already providing a gold rush for lawyers. The legal business is picking up marvelously in many industrial cities.

The full effect of the Supreme Court decision on this aspect of the wage-hour law cannot be predicted, but it is beginning to produce the most monumental legal event in years.

The government is not a party in this country-wide conflict. In the Supreme Court case its role was that of friend of the court. It was precluded from direct participation by the terms of the law.

The legal problems involved are numerous. In some states, the statute of limitations is being attacked. The Ohio legislature, in its last session, put a limitation of three years on such claims. Claimants say that a state limitation on a federal law is unconstitutional; that claims should be valid back in 1938, when the wage-hour law was passed. Law and common sense clash in such claims, for workers seemed perfectly willing to work over all these years without special payments.

There will, of course, be all sorts of settlements out of court. Some will forget the past and provide new agreements covering workers' travel time. In others, the Dow Chemical case formula will be followed. The Dow settlement provided $4,665,000 for back travel pay and also settled a new wage demand for 20 cents an hour by giving an 11-cent increase for travel pay. This future time allowance "with pay" amounts to about 27 minutes a day.

In various instances, it is contended that employers were put on notice by advisory opinions of the wage-hour division of the labor department, six years ago, and by the Supreme Court decision, two and a half years ago, in the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad case.

The issue is material only in cases where the total work week exceeds the 40-hour limit in the wage-hour law.

The seriousness of this wave of litigation is illustrated by the cases of some companies where the claims exceed their working capital. In one instance, the claim is $3,000,000; the net worth of the company, $1,000,000; and the working capital, $900,000.

Enforced mergers may take place, which once again shows how some New Deal laws actually accelerate the growth in size so deplored in New Deal economic philosophy.

There are many estimates of the amounts involved, running into billions. It is too early to know what this may cost industry overall.

Whatever is lost by industry will cut into government income. The Treasury is facing not only the loss of millions in income-tax revenues, but the possible payment of billions in reimbursements to war contractors.

The effect on the budget from this double drain will be serious.

Congressional relief may be possible in connection with future payments, but there is not much optimism among lawyers about water over the mill or, to be more exact, money past the portal.

This legal deluge cannot help but depress business prospects for 1947. And, what is most serious, it may well precipitate failures which will materially and psychologically depress the entire economy. This is an expensive Supreme Court.

Beware of Those "Bye-Bye" Pills.

By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU DIDN'T SLEEP well last night? And perhaps you got up and took one of those "harmless" bye-bye pills which your nervous friend said would do the trick.

Could be. Those bye-bye pills are plenty popular nowadays. But doctors, of course, fight against them like fury. Legislators pass laws against their sale. Magazine articles shriek warnings about their danger. But you can't feel any danger.

You've used them for months, maybe for years now, and they have been swell. They helped you sleep instead of thrashing around all night long. You waked up feeling great. Then why the mighty uproar?

Here's why. Believe it or not, the doctors and lawyers know their business. Those bye-bye pills, commonly called barbitals, won't give you any pain in the body which you could recognize. You won't spin into a fit some day and grab the kitchen knives. They'll leave no trace that anyone can see. But they'll leave a trace which will lick you in time as surely as cyanide. How come?

Here's how. The bye-bye pills won't harm your heart or hurt your brain. But they'll kick big gaping holes in your backbone. Not actual holes, not cavities through the vertebrae and spinal cord. But holes through the mental and spiritual spinal cord which holds you together.

For bye-bye pills give you an escape from reality. And like all escapes they raise hell with whatever character you possess. It may take them years to work but with every "simple little capsule" you will lose a little portion of your battling reserve, your fighting grit . . . the stuff that makes you an independent human being, instead of a fear ridden animal.

That's why doctors and lawyers are against the bye-bye pills. They're not fighting poison . . . they are fighting demoralization. To them it's as great a horror to see a character rot as it is to see a cancer spread.

That's why all escapes are vicious. That's why you must meet life on your own hind legs without any hush-hush padding if you possibly can—or take the count.

Chances are you wouldn't take morphine or heroin or drink a fifth of whisky a day. Yet these are only larger and more devilish ways of escape.

Whatever life is it was planned to be a battle; and you were given the stuff to win. Don't let any pill take it from you. Don't let any hush-hush drug rob you of your right to fight against pain and fear and loneliness. They are the certain birthright of the human soul.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Horoscope."

"Horoscope" is French, whence it comes to us by adoption. It is rooted in two Greek words meaning "hour" plus "watcher." These combined to make one Greek word which branded into a dozen languages—the Greek word meaning "observer of the hour of nativity."

This is the intrinsic sense of "horoscope." From the beginning its usage was in the pseudo-science of astrology, where it signified a chart showing the position of the planets at a particular moment.

To cast a horoscope was to pin down the location of the stars at the time of one's birth, for example. From this astrological picture of the heavens, conclusions would be drawn as to the influence of the constellations upon the life and fortunes of the individual whose horoscope had been depicted.

DAILY BBLE THOUGHT

Summary of Week's Happenings

Survey Shows Strikes Have Hit Lowest Point Since War's End

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE NATION emerged from Christmas week with the fewest workers on strike since V-J day. Wage contests, and possible shutdowns, impend in big mass production industries involving CIO steel, automobile and electrical workers, and another soft coal strike is possible April 1 but the department of labor reports a definite tapering off in work stoppages during the holiday season.

Just 18 new strikes involving 3,600 workers began in mid-December, the conciliation service reported. Another 112 strikes, involving 39,745 workers, continued into the period.

A snowballing series of court suits by unions seeking retroactive portal-to-portal pay and damage claims neared the $500,000,000 mark as the U. S. Chamber of Comerce polled 30,000 companies throughout the land on proposed amendments to relieve employers from back-pay liabilities dating back to 1938.

Decision Last June.

Last June the Supreme Court, in a case involving 1,200 Mt. Clemens, Mich., pottery workers, held that workers are entitled to pay for time spent preparing for their jobs on company property.

The union rush to capitalize on this interpretation of working time may bring a total of six billion dollars in suits. The Dow Chemical Co., of Midland, Mich., already has come to terms with Lewis' District 50, AFL, settling for $4,056,000.

Battle of Statisticians.

Meanwhile preparation of the new CIO drive for a second round of wage increases in the mass production industries loomed as a battle of statisticians.

Union economists figure that corporate profits for 1946 will be 50 per cent higher than at the war peak, that corporate employers can afford a 25 per cent increase in wages, manufacturing corporations can grant 21 per cent without reducing the rate of corporate earning below the 1936-39 average.

Business statisticians retort that capital investment in industry has increased, that the dividend dollar has been deflated as much as the wage dollar and that a general wage increase will either force higher prices or put many manufacturers out of business.

At Home

Race for Armaments.

While the United Nations reach out for lasing peace through plans for disarmament, there is hush-hush research in every land on new weapons of war. The atom bomb, of course, is the most publicized of these but there are a host of other new and developing weapons—rockets, jets, radar—to mention a few.

Britain and Australia have combined to lay out a $21,000,000 rocket-testing range across 3,000 miles of Australian desert which will take $10,500,000 annually to operate. Russia has its research projects too, as witness the rocket tests over the Baltic.

The United States is not lagging. The army already has under test a rocket plane with a potential speed of 1,700 m.p.h. German scientists under contract in the U. S. are confident it is possible for man to fly aboard the V-2 rockets developed by Nazis during the war, provided some method can be devised for getting him down safely.

The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics disclosed it was using 600-mile-an-hour rockets as flying "guinea pigs" for future robot weapons at Langley Field, Va.

* * *

Electronic "Stop Watch."

Meanwhile at Yale university, physicists have perfected an electronic "stop watch" capable of measuring time intervals as brief as one-thousandth of one millionth of a second.

The device, a refinement of measuring techniques used in wartime radar, was designed to measure the speed of atomic particles, count them and determine the energy of a charged particle in nuclear reactions.

Abroad

Peace Still Spotty.

Peace on earth still had not come to millions on the second Christmas after the end of the second World war of the 20th century. Nineteen months after V-E day and 16 after V-J day, there were reports of bloodshed and violence from declared or undeclared strife in at least 10 countries.

In China, nationalists are arrayed against Chinese Communists in a spreading but still undeclared civil war that threatens to engulf all her 450,000,000 people.

The Holy Land where Christ was born is an armed camp as British seek to quell terrorist outbreaks between Jew and Arab. Thousands of war refugees wait impatiently in displaced persons camps with Palestine their goal.

India on the threshold of independence from the British crown is wracked by religious riots between Moslem and Hindu.

* * *

Evolutionary Progress.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin felt good about the progress achieved in New York at the sessions of the Big Four foreign ministers council and the United Nations general assembly. He talked of real progress in a radio report to the country which normally he would have made to parliament, had it not recessed for the holidays.

In his report, Bevin said that gradual evolution of the United Nations is now in the process of improvement and modification.

"In New York, we found this process operating pretty effectively," he said. Although diplomats failed to agree on a formal code of conduct governing the veto, Bevin felt they would observe it in practice.

British policy, he declared, was based wholly on the United Nations.

* * *

Freedom Promised.

For the second time this year the British government whose empire embraces a quarter of the earth's land surface and more than a quarter of its people, offered to set a subject people free. This time it was Burma; last March it was India.

Burma is a land about the size of Texas with 15,000,000 people. India is a little more than half the size of continental United States with three times its population. The Indian offer has not yet materialized, partly because of the inability of Indians, themselves, to agree on independence.

Busy Year Ahead for Atomic Energy Group.

WASHINGTON—With the beginning of the new year, the atomic energy commission will officially take over control of the vast atomic energy plants built during the war, the stockpile of atomic bombs, and all of the paraphernalia of secrecy and security surrounding this most remarkable experiment in man's long history.

The five members of the new commission may well groan under the weight of their responsibility. No government body has ever assumed anything quite like this burden.

It would be different, of course, if they were beginning from scratch to direct the development of the atomic project. But they are taking over after three years of wartime development and a year and a half under peacetime operation.

Inevitably that has meant, particularly during the latter period, commitments extending far into the future. The commission is paying the penalty for the long delay by congress in passing peacetime atomic energy legislation.

One of the tasks the five men have been wrestling with in the preparatory period is hiring a staff. This has been greatly complicated by the microscopic investigation which the FBI conducts for the commission into each individual considered for employment by the new AEC. While this type of investigation with all its thoroughness may be essential, it does tend to dredge up a great deal of irrelevent information.

The members of the commission are having their own records combed over by the FBI. One of the atomic commissioners was amused to find included in his dossier the fact that in 1926 he had written a magazine article for the Outlook, a respectable and rather solemn journal of opinion which is now defunct.

This kind of scrutiny tends to weed out anyone who has ever done any bold thinking. The perfect employe would be an efficient robot who has never been guilty of a thought or an idea. Or, failing to find a robot, a knight of Sir Galahad's purity might just do as a substitute.

The search for a fitting candidate for general manager is proving especially difficult. Anyone fitted for such a responsible and difficult job could command $60,000 or $70,000 a year from private industry. The commission, under the law, can pay $15,000 a year. That means that the individual who takes the job must have a certain component of idealism which will persuade him to perform a vital service to government at considerable personal sacrifice.

If he has this element of idealism, then it is more than likely that he has expressed himself on the progressive side of one issue or another. Consequently he comes under the FBI microscope. The AEC has considered a great many names and thus far, in this brains and purity contest, no one has met all the qualifications.

Eventually the commission will assemble a capable staff. That is a matter of time and endless patience.

More far-reaching and infinitely more complex is the task of sorting the decisions from the past that seem to commit the AEC into the distant future.

The five men chosen by the president are well aware that their task has just begun. While the new year may not be a happy one for the new commission, it is certain to be full of surprises.

Timely Editorial

Seniority and Promotion.

Among the new demands of the CIO United Steelworkers, as listed in Pittsburgh, is that promotions in the steel industry be made on the basis of length of service.

This demand deserves clarification because it sounds like the old "seniority" principle as proposed by the advocates of a "drone" society since antiquity.

An attending clause in the CIO recommendation, however, indicates a mitigation. A "trial period" is suggested as the "determining factor" for permanency. The public should hear more about this.

One of the greatest dangers to any industrial system is the theory that a man's time in industry, rather than his individual initiative or ability, should become the qualification for advancement. — McKeesport (Pa.) News.

Farmer's Diary: "Break In Routine."

VACATION is here. A week of it has passed already. A week of noise and clutter and confusion, of games and wrestling matches and quarrels, of tinsel and glitter and belated Christmas shopping. Each evening after the four boys have quieted down in the attic, my wife and I have gladly and thankfully moved to set things back into their proper places.

"They're almost more than I can stand, sometimes," my wife confided wearily twisting her apron about so that the knotted strings were accessibly in front, and beginning to pick out the hard knots with aid of a fork. "They do have fun, though."

"No reason, no common sense," I acquiesced. "Just foolish thoughtless action! What did you do about that 'This is Kilroy's writing on the wall with blue crayon?'"

"Spanked the kid, and papered over it! What did you do about the broken chair, and the lost hammer, and the broken barn door hinge?"

"Bought another hammer and a bottle of glue," I admitted "for my own Christmas present."

Routine, we agree, is a wonderful blessing. On school days each boy must get up early enough to do his chores, wash, dress for school, and catch the school bus by 7:45. That seems early—it is. Ours is the first stop. It gets us all up and makes us rush around to meet a definite appointment. For if they are not ready when the bus comes to our door, snow, rain or sleet they have to walk more than a mile west to meet it when the route is almost completed and the bus is heavily loaded.

On vacations, the bars are down. Getting up late is a welcome luxury for a day or two—then irregularity begins to pall.

One of the greatest educational values of our public schools has nothing to do with history, mathematics, English or science. Punctuality, fairness, responsibility—ability to get along with teachers and fellow students—these things are lastingly important.

The home, the public school and the church have built the real America. When these three institutions lose their moral and spiritual influence—and they have not lost it—our country's future will be jeopardized.

Paul Claims the World for Christ — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

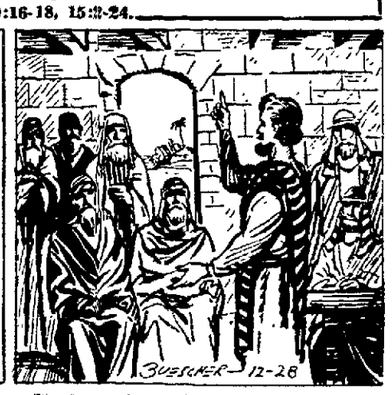
By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 9:15, 19-21, 23:11, 28:28-31; Romans 1:13-16, 10:16-18, 15:23-24.

After Paul had seen Jesus in a vision, Ananias, a devout man of Damascus, also had a vision, God telling him to go to Paul, for He had chosen Paul as missionary to "the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel."

In Jerusalem certain men stirred up the people against Paul, and he was taken prisoner. That night the Lord came to him saying, "Be of good cheer, Paul, for thou hast testified in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also in Rome."

Paul wrote to the Romans, telling them he had hoped to see them, "that I might have some fruit in you also, even as in the rest of the Gentiles." Being debtor to the Greeks and Barbarians, he had been hindered.



Finally at Rome, but a prisoner in his own house, Paul told the Jews, "Be it known therefore unto you, that the salvation of God is sent unto the Gentiles, and that they will hear it."

REPORTS HINT BLUM WILL VISIT BYRNES

PARIS —(AP)— Reports persist that Leon Blum, Socialist interim president-premier, might fly to the United States to confer with Secretary of State Byrnes on the French-American dispute over the Saarland. The foreign office said it knew nothing of such a plan.

French establishment of a customs barrier between the Saar and the rest of Germany, and reports that factories elsewhere in the French zone were being stripped for the benefit of the Saar have disturbed American occupation authorities. They protested that it was a "unilateral action."

Man Gives Up When 4 Death Attempts Fail

DAYTON —(INS)— Brooks Holland, 71-year-old Daytonian, gave up after four unsuccessful suicide attempts and today was in the Montgomery County Infirmary.

Police said Holland cut his wrist with a pen knife but the cut was not deep enough to reach the artery.

Then, twice Holland threw himself in front of a bus, but the first time the bus succeeded in missing him. The second time, Holland was only grazed.

Police were called and in a scuffle the would-be suicide victim drew a razor blade. It was broken but he managed to swallow a portion.

Yesterday, there was no noticeable effect from the blade and Judge Paul Sherer ordered him admitted to the county infirmary.

Holland told the judge he wanted to end his life because all his relatives were dead.

"I wanted to join them but God must have ruled therwise," he told the court.

DENVER—(UP)—One of the fancy silk garters was embroidered with the word "yes," the other with "no."

She wanted the "yes" garter exchanged for another that said "no."

BOY CALM AFTER MURDER CHARGE

WILMINGTON, Del. —(UP)— Curly-haired Danny Norris, 17-year-old inmate of a school for delinquent boys, remained unmoved today despite the fact he and a younger companion yesterday were charged formally with the murder of a Wilmington city detective.

Norris, described by officials at the Ferris Industrial school as an "incorrigible" and a "chronic runaway," was accused of firing five shots at Detective Thomas Conaty as he questioned the boy about a robbery.

Leonard Bushell, Norris' alleged companion in three robberies which preceded the shooting, also was charged with murder. However, it was understood he will be indicted as an accessory since police said he did not fire any shots at the 34-year-old detective.

Until yesterday, police said, Norris insisted Conaty was shot when the revolver the youth held accidentally went off in a scuffle.

However, detectives said the boy changed his story today and signed a statement admitting there was no struggle and that he emptied his gun at the detective as Conaty started to search him.

The older boy was tricked into giving up his gun by two civilians near Edge More, Del., Thursday night, and was arrested. Bushell was taken into custody shortly after the detective died.

CPA ENDS LEAD RESTRICTIONS

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The civilian production administration yesterday formally revoked all government controls on the use of lead but said restrictions on inventories would continue indefinitely.

The inventory order requires that all consumers must limit the amount of lead in their possession to 30 days' requirements. The agency also said that consumers must continue making reports to CPA on the amounts of inventories, consumption, and shipments of lead, consumption and stocks of scrap and secondary lead and tin.

CPA also lifted its controls governing the use of lead in pigments and insecticides and in ethyl fluid for blending of high octane gasoline.

With these controls removed, CPA said lead users no longer would be eligible for priorities assistance in obtaining the metal.

CAR PRODUCTION TOPS 2,000,000

DETROIT — (AP) — With two production days remaining the car industry's 1946 output volume, according to revised figures, will total 2,149,170 passenger vehicles and 939,167 trucks and other commercial vehicles.

The revised figures are based on officials reports for 12 months and an estimate of December production. The totals are up slightly—about 9,000 in each classification—from figures previously announced by the Automobile Manufacturers' association.

The figures disclose, too, that the industry produced more cars and trucks during the last half of 1946 than it did in the like period of 1941. That part of 1941, of course, included shutdowns for model change-overs and, subsequently, production under quota allocations by the government.

Cost of administration of the program already has been financed on a three-year basis, he added.

Here's Review of '46 Buckeye State High School Athletics

By JOHN BARRINGTON

COLUMBUS — (INS) — The end of this first post-war year found Ohio high school athletics riding the crest of a nationwide sports boom.

Swollen attendances left outmoded gymnasiums and football stadiums wholly inadequate to handle peak crowds in many instances. Even the largest facilities were strained to the utmost.

Rabid basketball fans practically hung from the rafters and crowded to the very boundaries of playing floors. Tournament time found would-be spectators standing in ticket lines for hours, yet many were turned away.

Premier football attractions, blessed by slightly more flexible facilities, were played before crowds that sometimes doubled permanent seating capacity figures. The fans took standing room and liked it. Cleveland's annual charity game drew more than 71,000 into the Lakefront stadium for an all-time scholastic record.

The quickened interest in sports was also reflected in greater school participation. A total of 1,134 high schools placed organized teams in 1945-46 basketball competition, for instance, with 24,849 boys included in the program. Well over 500 teams played scholastic football in 1946.

Among personnel on 1946 teams were several hundred war veterans, back to complete high school after discharges from military service. The Ohio High School Athletic Association permitted ex-G. I.'s who had been in good standing when they left school to return to athletic competition at once. The inflexible 20-year age limit was applied, however.

The year produced the traditional quota of outstanding teams and individual stars.

Middletown climaxed a great three-year record by winning the state class "A" basketball championship. The Middies won the title in 1943-44, lost to Bellevue in the next year's finals, then returned to the throne for the 1945-46 season.

The Middies were undefeated in 1945-46 and lost only that wind-up game to Bellevue the previous year. Coach George Houck's five defeated Akron North in last spring's finals at Toledo.

The picturesque "Dirty Shirts" of Little Farmer in Defiance county romped away with the class "B" crown after winning 32 of 33 games and surviving four tournaments. Runner-up to Farmer was Worthington.

Neither champion seemed likely to repeat in the new season just beginning. Middletown lost Coach Houck and all its regulars, including Paul Lansaw, two-time all-state selection. Four of Farmer's starters were missing as the '46-47 campaign began.

Canton McKinley lost its scholastic swimming championship as it was edged by a well-balanced Sandusky tank combine in the state meet at Columbus.

Spring sports were headed by baseball with 764 teams and track with 485 participating schools. Toledo Devilbiss dethroned Mansfield for the state track championship in class "A" while the "B" toga was assumed by New London. Akron North won the cross-country title this fall.

On the diamond, class "A" honors went to Cleveland Lincoln. Reading emerged as class "B" champ.

The "B" division in the Columbus championships advanced Fred Apking of Reading as one of the state's most versatile athletes. Fred played centerfield for Reading's baseball titlists, then shucked his monkey suit to win the class "B" low hurdles. The six foot five inch Apking was also a whale of a football player, he started at end for the southern team in the all-star grid game at Toledo in August.

Columbus North turned in some hot licks on the golf course to become state links winner for the third straight year.

The Ohio high school coaches association staged the first annual all-star football game in connection with a highly successful coaching school. Jack Mollenkopf of Toledo Waite, the host school, managed the entire event. Approximately 13,000 fans saw the Southern squad, coached by Frank Leahy of Notre Dame, defeat Paul Bixler's North team, 26 to 21.

Another pre-season game pitted the Southeastern Ohio all-stars against the West Virginia Panhandle area stars. The Buckeyes won, 26 to 7. Frank Thomas of Alabama coached the Ohioans.

High school football in 1946 was marked by the usual tangled claims to mythical state honors.

Cleveland Cathedral Latin worked its string of consecutive unbeaten games to 34, although the Lions were tied once. Latin Coach Herb Eisele was rewarded with a promotion to the coaching post at John Carroll University.

A similar undefeated skein reached 29 games for Ed Kluska's Cincinnati Purcell Eleven. Lima Central and Youngstown Woodrow Wilson were other major undefeated and untied teams. Central's coach, Seraph Pope, was selected as high school coach of the year in an International News Service poll of coaches and sports writers.

For a nominal champion, however, the writing fraternity turned to once beaten Toledo Waite. Jack Mollenkopf's team breezed through an extremely rugged schedule but had its record marred by an 8-to-6 upset by Libbey of its hometown. The season's end found the Indians willing to challenge all comers.

Behind Waite, the sports writers, in a poll conducted by International News Service, rated Cathedral Latin, Lima Central, Toledo Libbey, Youngstown Woodrow Wilson, Canton McKinley, Cincinnati Purcell, Steubenville Central Catholic, Massillon and Mansfield.

Here are 1946 Ohio high school sports champions:

Football—Toledo Waite (unofficial; chosen by sports writers in International News Service poll.)
Basketball—Class "A," Middletown; Class "B", Farmer.
Baseball—Class "A" Cleveland Lincoln; Class "B" Reading.
Track—Class "A", Toledo Devilbiss; Class "B", New London.
Golf—Columbus North.
Swimming—Sandusky.
Cross-Country—Akron North.

SPORTS ROUND UP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Word from the South and Southwest is that Georgia Tech's Bobby Dodd is either (1) already signed for Baylor, with an announcement to come after the Oil Bowl game, or (2) is using the offer to hoist his salary to the level enjoyed by other Southeastern coaches. You takes your choice . . . Marquette's Bill Chandler and Michigan's Ozzie Cowles, whose basketball teams clash New Year's eve, both jumped into the big time from River Falls, Wis. State Teachers college. . . . National Football league Prexy Bert Bell figures three of this year's Penn gridders might make the pro grade—Chuck Bednarik, Bernie Gallagher and maybe Skippy Minisi. Bert says Bednarik is about the best center he has seen in ten years.

SPORTS BEFORE YOUR EYES

Although Judge W. G. Bramham retires as minor league baseball boss next month, he'll keep his Durham, N. C., office open and the phone likely will continue to jangle with demands for advice from baseball men. . . . Sam Milosevich, brother of ex-Yankee Mike and key man on last year's club, was out of action with a football injury when the national intercollegiate champion basketball team (Kansas City version) Southern Illinois Normal, opened its season. . . . Among the record prices paid for prospective horse racing talent this year was the $20,000 paid by the King brothers of California for a foal by Bimelech-Lady Bos'n, which isn't due to be born until early in 1947. . . . That's one for the future book.

WEAK END ITEMS

Carl Snavely, North Carolina U grid coach, had Assistant Jim Gill at the Giants' training camp for three days before the National Football league playoff to see if there was anything he could borrow from Steve Owen's "T" defenses to use against Georgia's "T" in the Sugar Bowl . . . Hubie McDonough, Dartmouth's 1917 football captain who retired from coaching this year after 26 years at Central high in Manchester, N. H. has been doing New York's sights with his squad for four days. It's hard to say whether the kids or the coach have been getting a bigger kick out of it. Hubie's coaching record shows 174 victories, 56 losses and 22 ties against strong opposition.

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — Promoter Manager Jack Kearns, who guided Jack Dempsey to the world's heavyweight crown more than 25 years ago, said today he has found "the best white heavyweight since Gene Tunney."

Kearns predicted that Joey Maxim, handsome Cleveland Italian would ascend to the throne once held by Dempsey.

MANSFIELD TYGERS EDGE ELYRIA QUINT, 35 to 34

BENGAL RALLY ACCOUNTS FOR FIFTH VICTORY

Come From Behind In Final 90 Seconds.

By FRED THARP
(N-J Sports Editor)

ELYRIA—Mansfield Senior high basketeers are getting in the habit of winning court skirmishes the hard way.

They racked up their fifth victory in seven starts here last night by rallying in the final 90 seconds to edge a big Elyria quintet, 35 to 34. It was the third time this season that the Bengals had notched a one-point victory.

Previously Vern Hoffman's lads had beaten Cleveland Collinwood, 36 to 35, and Toledo Libbey, 41-40.

After leading for 17 minutes, Mansfield fell behind in the closing minutes when Johnny Krusz hit from under the basket and Vic Janowicz pounded home a long shot and a foul. That put the Pioneers in the van, 32-31.

Little Tommy Bloor leading scorer of the contest then connected with a one-hander and Ralph Majors hit a pair of fouls to send the Tygers three points ahead. Krusz got a rebound in the last eight seconds to narrow the margin.

The contest was a staid affair until the final period, with neither team showing much punch. Twenty-four of the game's 69 points were propelled through the mesh in the last stanza. Both outfits used a zone defense until the closing moments when Elyria started to press to gain control of the ball.

Elyria outhit the Bengals from the court, 14 to 13, but Hoffman's lads garnered nine of 18 free throws. The Pioneers made six of 13. The taller Pioneers limited Mansfield to 32 shots from the court. The Tygers' completion percentage was 25.

Mansfield kept Krusz 6-4 center, well in check although he did tie Janowicz for Pioneer scoring honors with 11. The lanky soph made three fielders in the opening period and then was held scoreless until the final quarter.

For the first time this season Mansfield was ahead at the half. The Tygers led, 18 to 17, but had to come from behind to annex the single point margin.

Elyria moved to a 13 to 9 lead in the first canto but a free throw by Chuck Sisco followed by Nick Grecni's fourth basket put the lead to one-point. Don Bauer then sunk a one-hander for [illegible] basket and [illegible] Majors [illegible] Mansfield ahead for [illegible] two minutes to go in the half.

Bloor opened again on a rebound by Ralph Major. Davis Cuppers All Mixed Up

MELBOURNE—(AP)—The wind-up of the Davis cup challenge round, postponed by heavy rains until Monday, was saved from being pure anti-climax today by the decision of Australia's John Bromwich to return to play.

Bromwich withdrew yesterday after he and Adrian Quist surrendered to the United States the trophy Australia has held since 1939 in losing the decisive doubles match to the American team of Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder.

Schroeder had started the rout the previous day by trimming Bromwich at singles, and Kramer followed through with a three-set victory over Dinny Pails.

The remaining two singles matches, which will have no bearing on the final outcome, were scheduled for today, but postponement was forced by a heavy downpour.

Bromwich's change of mind caused non-playing Captains Walter Pate of the American team and Gerald Patterson of the Aussies to shuffle and re-shuffle several times their lineups for the remaining singles.

When Bromwich withdrew, Pate substituted Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Fla., for Kramer, who was to have faced Bromwich in the lineup. Patterson named Quist to fill the vacant singles spot on his squad.

Then it was announced the singles lineup would sent Schroeder against Quist and Mulloy against Pails. Later another change was made when it was found such a switch was not permitted under cup rules. Approaching the time for today's match, the schedule stood Mulloy vs. Quist and Schroeder vs. Pails.

Now, with Bromwich back in the lineup, Mulloy instead of Schroeder will meet Pails.

Phillies Pick Up Reserve Strength

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)— The Phillies picked up a bit of reserve strength today for the 1947 season.

The new Bluejay hired hand—Lou Finney, outfielder-first baseman—is a former athletic.

Now 36, Finney signed as a free agent. His last baseball was played with the St. Louis Browns early last season. Finney also played with the Boston Red Sox as well as the A's.

Giants Sign Three.

NEW YORK —(INS)— The New York Giants announced today that First Baseman Johnny Mize, Pitcher Bill Voiselle, and Outfielder Willard Marshall have signed contracts for the 1947 season.

Barclay on Bridge

IF YOU are too lazy to notice the little things, you will never be a great player. That applies to either the offense or defense. Unspectacular details, such as the spot cards played on high card tricks, can unfold the key to successful play the rest of the way. Discards by one member of the defense, to send messages to his partner, are especially important. What the other defender does is influenced by them—or should be—and from the declarer's standpoint they constitute warnings regarding how he should try to protect himself. That is, if he can.

West's lead of the diamond 5 was won by the Q, and South led the club 9 to the K and A. He scored the club Q, then cashed the heart A before leading the club 7 to the J. West laid down his diamond A, then led the 2 to the K. Three clubs and a spade trick followed to give South his game.

East blew up like a bomb as soon as the completion of play released his tension.

"Didn't you see me signal with spades on the second and third club tricks?" he asked West. He had put the grade 8S on the first of those tricks and the 2 on the second.

"If you had obeyeesd that signal, and led a spade whoeen you got in with your jack of clubs," East said, "I would have won with the ace and returned theee ten to your suit. We would haveee trapped the king then and wouldod have scored four diamond trickses. Those plus the spade and cluboo would have set him two tricks.""

True enough. But it East could not do anything after West explained: "I didn't notice your signal.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennett Cerf

Three young sprouts from a prominent publishing house lunched at a crowded automat one Monday. The only table with three seats available es was already preempted by formidable old lady, whose presence put a decided damper on the exchange of tall tales of weekend conquests they all had been looking forward to.

One of the crafty sub-editors have an idea. "I promised my girl I'd take a bath Saturday night," he said with a wink to his companion. "It'll be exactly a year since I took one last."

"Well, well," said the second, "If that's the case, I think I'll change my socks. I threw them up to the ceiling this morning and the left one stuck there for five minutes."

"Youse boids are sissies,' sneered the third (a graduate cum laude of Harvard). "I ain't been in a tub for three years. I love doit.

The three brilliant plotters looked hopefully at the old lady, but she placidly continued munching her pie. Then she poured cream into her coffeese, and spoke for the first time. "Would one of you stinkers," she sesaid, "kindly pass me the sugar?""

THE TRUCE AT PADDY'S POND

Little Joe Otter was having fun. There was no doubt about that. He had made a slippery slide down a steep bank where the water was not frozen over just above the pond of Paddy the Beaver. He would climb out on the bank where it was low, go around to the steepest part and slide down this headlong, his arms held back against his sides and his hind legs straight out behind him, plop into the water.

It was a mild day. Had it been one of those bitter days when the water would have frozen on his fur the instant he came out in the air he wouldn't have been sliding. No, sir, he wouldn't have been sliding. But this day was just right for sliding and he was making the most of it. At last he grew tired. "Enough is enough," said he. "That must be the pond of Paddy the Beaver over there. I wonder if Paddy and Mrs. Paddy are still living there. I'll swim over there and find out."

He found out sooner than he expected. Paddy, unseen, had been watching him slide and now showed himself. "So you are still living here," said Little Joe.

"I am still living here," replied Paddy not so pleasantly.

"And Mrs. Paddy?" said his unwelcome visitor inquiringly.

"She is still living here also," replied Paddy.

Little Joe shook his round head. "I don't know how you do it," said he.

"Do what?" asked Paddy.

"Stay so long in one place," replied Little Joe. "I wouldn't if I could, so it is just as well that I can't."

"Why can't you?" asked Paddy.

"Food," replied Little Joe. "One must have food and there never are enough fish and clams in one place for me to stay there very long. I have to keep on the move and go where the food is. But that is half the fun of being alive. I like to travel. I like to see a little of the Great World. Yes, sir, I do so. What do you folks who stay in one place know of the Great World? Nothing. Simply nothing."

"We know when we are well off and how to stay so, and that is more than some folks seem to know," growled Paddy.

"Speaking of fish, I would like a fat Trout right now. There must be some in that pond," said the brown fisherman.

"That is my pond!" snapped Paddy sharply.

"You don't say," grinned Little Joe Otter. "Well, the fish in it are my fish. You keep the pond and I'll take the fish. What do you say?"

Paddy didn't say. He didn't know what to say. "You know you can't keep me out of that pond if you try," said Little Joe. He said it good-naturedly.

"I haven't said anything about trying to keep you out of my pond," grumbled Paddy.

"Don't," said Little Joe. "Just keep in mind that I go where I please when I please, and do what I please. I'm not quarrelsome but not afraid to fight anybody."

"Do you expect to stay long?" asked Paddy.

Little Joe grinned. "That depends on how long the fish last. If there are plenty of Trout in that pond of yours I'll be your neighbor for a while anyway. Any objections?"

Paddy offered no objections, knowing that it would be useless to. "As long as you eat fish and I don't and I eat bark and you don't, I guess there will be nothing to fight about, especially if we keep out of the way of each other. The fish are yours for the catching," said he.

"And the bark is all yours. I don't want it. Living on bark—ugh!" replied Little Joe making up a face. He dived under the ice for a fish and Paddy dived to go home and tell Mrs. Paddy the news. There would be no trouble as long as each minded his own business.

GALION FINISHES EXPERIMENT IN TRAFFIC SAFETY; SENIOR HIGH PUPILS PASS AUTO DRIVING COURSE

By CATHERINE RORICK
NJ State Correspondent.

GALION—A unique experiment in safe automobile driving was concluded today when members of the first class of the new auto driving course at the Senior high school were given their final examination and successfully passed driving tests

The course, sponsored by the Galion Automobile club, was inaugurated in Galion schools in the fall. Galion high school won the distinction of being one of the few schools in this area to offer an automobile driving course.

Each class member will be issued an operator's license from the state.

Studying under E. M. Hixon, a certified teacher for the driving course took their final examination from Corporal Shaw of the Marion headquarters of the State Highway patrol.

In a large measure responsible for the inauguration of the course was Mrs. Grace Thomas, secretary of the Galion Automobile club.

Mrs. Thomas Cited.

Mrs Thomas conferred with the board of education, pointing out the merits of such instruction for young people in promoting safer drivers in the community.

Mrs. Thomas also organized the school safety patrol, and has backed other safety movements in Galion. She formerly was chairman of the safety committee of the Galion P.-T. A council.

"Because there were at least 220 Christmas holiday deaths caused by automobile accidents, the automobile driving course definitely should be considered as a safety measure," she said.

"Laboratory" of the driving course is a special automobile, furnished by the Gerrow Motor Sales company, which is equipped with dual controls.

Specially-Equipped Auto.

The light-colored car has emblems of the A.A.A. on both sides of the body and at the rear. The dual controls provide control on the right and left-hand side.

This makes it possible for the instructor to have control of the car at all times, and thus prevent any accident which might result while the student is learning.

Teacher of the couse is E. M. Hixon, a certified driving teacher, who also is assistant coach at the high school.

Hixon received special training for driving instruction at Pennsylvania State college. He taught a driving course at Parkersburg, W. Va., from 1937 to 1945

Textbooks for the course are provided by the Galion Automobile club. These include "Sportsman-like Driving," written by traffic specialists and educators.

The teacher's manual is "Driver Education and Training Manual for High School Teachers." The course has 15 A.A.A.-designed psychophysical driver testing devices.

To develop a competent driver requires six hours behind the wheel, with a total of 15 hours in the car, according to Mrs. Thomas. Four students are taught at one time, each having a 15-minute turn at the wheel while the other three sit in the back seat and listen to instructions.

A new class will start when the second semester opens at the school in January.

Norse Explorers Plan Ocean Trip on Raft to Polynesia

WASHINGTON—(ANS)—The war department made room in the atomic age today for a four thousand mile expedition halfway across the Pacific ocean on a prehistoric raft sailed by six Norse explorers

The department announced that the explorers, equipped with U. S. army supplies, expect to solve mysteries surrounding the origin of the people and civilization of the Polynesian islands.

Leader of the four month expedition from Ilo, Peru to Polynesia is Thor Heyerdahl, noted explorer from Lillehammer, Norway. The strange journey is scheduled to start in February.

Heyerdahl told reporters that he believes the journey will give credence to his controversial theory that the original settlement of the Pacific islands resulted from a migration of prehistoric American peoples rather than a trek from Asia.

The 25-foot balsa wood raft which Heyerdahl and his companions will ride will be a replica of the type preserved in ancient Inca legends and early Spanish historical accounts.

The war department, in exchange for data on the journey, has provided:

Protective clothing and life-saving equipment; non-perishable rations; liferafts; waterproofed containers for equipment; sleeping bags and communications equipment.

The explorers are searching for a suitable radio in the hope of sending voice reports to regular communication establishments and to any interested amateur radio operators.

Heyerdahl said that he wanted no ships to follow the raft in case of emergency. He expressed belief that the expedition has a 100 per cent chance for success.

The expedition is called "Kon-Tiki" after the Peruvian white sun-god.

The sixth member of the party has not been definitely selected. In addition to Heyerdahl, these four explorers are making the trip.

Herman Watzinger, engineering scientist; Torstein Pettersen, radio communications expert, Erik Hasselberg, artist and navigator; and Johanes Johnson, linquist and expert on marine flora and fauna.

12 FOUND DEAD AT CRASH SCENE

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(U.P.)—Rescuers fought their way, headdown into a blizzard today, to remove the bodies of 12 persons from the wreckage of a western airliner which smashed into boulder-strewn Cuyapaipe peak on Christmas eve.

The crash scene was located yesterday on a rugged promontory in the Towering Laguna mountain range between San Diego and Imperial valley, 50 miles east of here. All aboard apparently had been killed instantly.

Coroner C. D. Gunn led 25 marines and 11 forest service men from the Cameron guard station at dawn in the first effort to reach the wind-swept peak and remove the bodies on litters down the tortuous three-mile trail to Thing ranch.

It took the search party more than six hours yesterday to fight its way through the two feet of snow and reach the plane.

Ten victims, some burned badly, were found scattered among fragments of the wreckage, over a 300-foot area. Two were believed buried in the charred fuselage.

The search party was led by "Happy" Milan, Jacumba cowboy, who said he had a "hunch" where to find the wreck because his horse "acted spooky" when he rode near there yesterday.

LAMB STARTED WAVE OF BIG 'PORTAL' SUITS

Toledo Attorney Fears Law Curbing Reckless Demands.

TOLEDO —(AP)—The lawyer who set in motion the series of employe overtime suits against manufacturers, now snow-balled into an enormous sum, advised unions today to proceed cautiously.

Edward Lamb said union leaders and their attorneys should not risk tough, restrictive action from congress by asking "fabulous and reckless" amounts in the portal-to-portal pay suits.

The nation-wide train of legal actions, in which workers ask overtime pay covering all required time they put in on their employers' premises, aggregate nearly $300,000,000 in Ohio alone, and more are being filed almost daily.

Lamb, who obtained from the U. S. Supreme court a decision that employers must pay for all substantial time a worker spends at his site of work at an employer's request, said in an interview:

"Attorneys filing these suits for back pay shouldn't try to name the sum they think is due the workers. Such a suit itself is only an accounting action, asking the court to say how much. But it is not necessary and it is unwise to specify these fabulous and reckless sums.

* * *

Fears Tough Laws.

"They frighten industry and may stir congress to adopt restrictive legislation in the coming session."

He described it as "the biggest and most important decision the Supreme court ever made.

Yet the decision did nothing more than "define a work week," he said.

The ruling upheld the Toledo attorney's contention in behalf of workers of the Mount Clemens (Michigan) Pottery company.

Lamb, who also is a radio station owner and newspaper publisher, took the Mount Clemens case to the U. S. District court in Detroit June 16, 1941.

He said he discovered in the company records "a very strange demand on workers"—a request for them to be on the job 14 minutes ahead of official starting time with no pay mentioned for that extra time. He asked an accounting and back wages, and the suit swung back and forth through lower courts before raeching the Supreme court.

The high court returned its decision June 6, 1946, and reaffirmed it Oct. 14, then sent the case back to the Detroit District court to determine how money was due the workers.

The Supreme court held that overtime records must be kept by an employer, or the workers' own statements must be accepted; that all substantial time spent on the employer's premises at his request must be paid for; and that unions and individuals could sue for overtime pay as far back as October, 1938, when the wage-hours act became effective, provided that the statute of limitations did not interfere.

Many of the suits which ask sums like $22,500,000 from Standard Oil Company of Ohio and $10,000,000 from Chase Brass and Copper Company, ask payment for time employes put in changing their clothes and in washing.

MANSFIELDER BOUND OVER IN FATAL KNIFING

Charged with second-degree murder in the Christmas morning slaying of Richard Jones, Demo club bartender, Clarence Black, 55, of 224½ North Main street, was held to the Richland county grand jury under $10,000 bond today after waiving examination at a preliminary hearing in municipal court.

The waiver of examination automatically gave Black a plea of innocence.

Jones died following stab wounds in the neck at the North Main street address, police said.

Detectives reported the stabbing followed an argument over $2.50.

The Geiger funeral home reported that Jones' body was sent to Louisiana where funeral services will be held. Jones had lived at the Morton hotel here.

NAME AIR FIRM IN NEW SUIT

Harrington interests, including a petition by Arthur Cornell, Shelby, for eviction of Air Service, Inc., from two hangars at the airport.

Cornell, brother-in-law of James R. (Bud) Harrington, city airport manager and founder of the firms which bear his name, seeks the two hangars for eventual use of the Great Lakes Air Lines, Inc., of which Harrington is president.

Pending also is Harrington's request to Mansfield city council for more land at the airport upon which he hopes to carry on his own aviation interests.

Harrington resigned from official position in the companies he founded several months ago. Since then they were reorganized and a creditors committee formed to aid in management of the firms.

OBIT SCRIVENERS tagged Gov. Talmadge as "a champion of white supremacy." That's not the right word . . . Such bigots are never CHAMPS! . . . It is a nicenelly way of saying he was a vicious man who condoned lynching—and a despicable example of the sordid side of American politics. Talmadge was a champion of Nazism. Period.

Some years ago, Talmadge presented every member of the Georgia legislature with his trademark—a pair of red suspenders. One representative refused them saying: "Feeling in my mind that there is a collar that goes with these suspenders, I therefore decline."

Talmadge died of a liver ailment; exclusively a white man's disease, no doubt.

Talmadge will be oofly surpriged if he tries to get into Heaven and finds George Washington Carver and Booker T. Washington on the qualifications comittee.

A local editorialist flips slime at the OWI activities during the war. But that can be debunked: Among those who lauded the OWI (for its contribution to the Allied victory) was Gen. Eisenhower . . . And remember—it was the OWI which forced the surrender of the Italian fleet without the loss of a single American life.

But when the Nazis were riding high the same Schacht made a "plunder survey" of the Balkans for Hitler. He listed everything seizable in production and financial wealth . . . The report appalled even hardened Nazis, who pointed out that he had not left so much as a ton of provisions for the needs of the local populations.

Schacht's cruel reply was: "Oh, God, do they have to eat?"

THE PROCEEDINGS against Bilbo have been interpreted by Southern editors as an attempt "to make a fascist out of a U. S. senator."

It wouldn't have been necessary if they hadn't made a United States senator out of a Ham Fishist!

Jackie Elinson's wonderful offering: "I see the papers keep calling Bilbo 'The Man.' Oh, boy! Such irresponsible reporting!"

Senator Thomas of Oklahoma (Dem.) says it wasn't Bilbo who kept Negroes from the polls. "It was Mississippi's primary system."

If that's true, then we've all made a terrible mistake. It wasn't Hitler who caused the war. It was the Nazi system!

The Bilbo probe has been postponed for a week. After all the smelly revelations—it will take that long to air the room.

Too many congressmen are suspicious of Roosevelt's activities in Russia instead of Bilbo's in Mississippi.

How can we get the bigots out of the USA then we can't even get them out of the U. S. senate?

The hint of a crooked football game up North aroused more indignation than proof of crooked elections down South.

Add Newspaperman Stuff: Walter Lippmann analyzed the readers' relation with newspapers by pointing out that "the reader expects the fountain of truth to bubble, but he enters into no contract, legal or moral involving any risk, cost or trouble to himself. He will pay a nominal price when it suits him, will stop paying whenever it suits him, will turn to another paper when that suits him. Somebody has said quite aptly that the newspaper editor has to be re-elected every day."

Newspaper Vignette: Wally Yerkes, a reputed for 40 years, was assigned to cover the Waldorf on the day the president was there. Yerkes went into a phone booth to notify his paper of the president's arrival. As he emerged he was nabbed by cops and secret service men. Because he carried a package! The suspicious parcel turned out to be two cans of soup which the reduced reporter had to re-wrap before the mob of tch-tch'ing news pix.

Lippmann Today and Tomorrow

IF WE MAY believe—as I think we may—that the results of a recent survey by Elmo Roper for Fortune Magazine are substantially correct, we have a clew to many things in America which are otherwise puzzling and contradictory. Roper asked two simple but searching questions. First: Are opportunities to succeed better, as good, or worse today than in your father's day? Second: Do you think your son's opportunities to succeed will be better, as good, or worse than yours?

Considering how much we have heard about the ideological conflict in this epoch of revolutions, the results of Roper's survey are spectacular. Nearly 70 men out of every hundred think they have better opportunity than their fathers had. More than 60 in a hundred think their sons will have even better opportunities than they have. On the pessimistic side less than 13 men in a hundred think they have less chance than their fathers, or that their sons will have less chance than they.

* * *

THE BREAKDOWN of the figures is no less interesting. Men between 17 and 25 are considerably more optimistic about their own chances than are men over 40. The prosperous are, of course, more optimistic than the poor. But even the poor voted by a substantial majority (61.4%) that they have a better chance than their fathers. Negroes, most significantly, are more optimistic (67.8%) about their own opportunities than the poor, as a whole, and are indeed very nearly as optimistic as the national average of all Americans. About their sons' chances they are more optimistic than the average, more optimistic than any other classification of men. Only 5.3% think their sons will be worse off than they; 75% believe they will be better off.

* * *

THERE IS NO evidence here that American society is becoming fixed and rigid in a separation of classes. On the contrary these figures say that not only is American society expanding internally but that the circulation from the bottom to the top is felt by the great majority to be free and active. These figures contradict flatly any theory that American society is following the classic pattern toward class and caste, toward hereditary privilege of the few and permanent inferiority for the many.

Roper's figures would, I think, justify the statement that in America the circulation upward in the social order is so free and active that this country is living in a state of slow but permanent revolution. The violent forms of revolution occur where the circulation is obstructed, and only an explosion can restore it. As long as most of the people of a country feel that in fact they are not constricted and held down, that country has the essential benefit of revolution — the renewal of its vigor by the rise of new men—without the convulsions which are the price of revolution!

THIS IS ALMOST certainly the reason why Americans, though they are in rapid motion not only from place to place but from one social level to another, are ideologically today more conservative than most of the rest of the world. They are conservative about their institutions because they lack the motive which really impels masses of men to wish to change their institutions. That motive is the denial or the absence of opportunity for the mass of men. In this country today the mass of men do not think they lack, or are being denied, opportunity.

From this many consequences flow. One is that Americans are unwilling to take the trouble to do much about their institutions which have become in many respects antiquated—the structure of government, for example, in congress and its relations with the presidency. If this country were in serious trouble, the defects of the government might be disastrous.

The reason the people do not worry sufficiently about the defects of the government is that the social order, as they see it in Roper's survey, does not seriously trouble them. They put up with a government that works badly because except in time of war or deep depression, they do not found their expectations in life upon what the government does.

One Dead, 25 Hurt In Food Strike Riot

ROME —(AP)— The big southeastern port town of Bari, with a population of 200,000, this morning went into the second day of a general strike against food shortages that yesterday brought bloody battling between ugly-tempered crowds and police.

One university student was dead and 25 other people wounded, including 15 police, at the end of the first day of the strike, which arose out of the refusal or inability of local authorities to grant popular demands for relief from hunger and soaring prices, according to dispatches to the Rome press.

KETTERING SAYS U. S. HAD A-BOMB BEFORE THE WAR

Scientist Sees Photography Helping Feed World.

(From News-Journal Wires)

BOSTON—America learned today it was prepared for World War II.

Dr. Charles F. Kettering, head scientist of General Motors Corporation, told the American Association for Advancement of Science that miniature atomic bombs were exploded in laboratory tests before Hitler marched into Poland.

He said, however, the scientific achievements which made victory possible were being prepared in the country's laboratories during the past 25 years. These, Dr. Kettering said, included high octane gasoline, radar and penicillin.

Food by Photography.

Dr. Kettering also predicted that the world may some day feed its starving by use of radiation chemistry, the secret of photography.

Radiation chemistry, also known as photosynthesis, is, he said, the method nature uses to make the earth's present food supply out of carbon dioxide and the air, and water and a few minerals.

"We know little of the process now," he declared, "but some day we may be able to reproduce it in the laboratory. Radiation chemistry fixes billions of tons of carbon without a test tube, Bunsen burner or burette."

All this is done without expensive processes. Furthermore, Dr. Kettering pointed out, the coal and oil also came from nature's same radiation chemistry.

Fertilizer From Sea.

But, he said, photography represents nearly all of man's use of this kind of chemistry. In industry the radiation principles are in use to only a small extent.

"We have," he continued, "the scientific knowledge to provide an adequate diet for everyone if the information were properly applied."

Dr. Kettering also proposed that man get his fertilizer from the sea. He said he believed if necessity demands the fertilizer essentials can be obtained from the sea that already supplies magnesium and bromine and that has produced a small nugget of gold.

GOP WILL HOLD FIRE ON BILBO

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senate Republicans determined to keep Senator Bilbo (D-Miss.) out of congress agreed generally today that they will let him be sworn in and then bring their majority to bear on a motion that he be ousted.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) declared he still favored trying to prevent Bilbo from taking the oath and will carry his fight to a conference of all 51 GOP senators and senators-elect next Tuesday.

Most of his colleagues, however, seemed to feel that delaying tactics are in order.

For one thing, there will be only 28 full-fledged Republican senators against 31 Democrats at the moment the 80th congress convenes at noon next Friday. Another 23 re-elected or newly chosen Republicans will still have to take the oath, along with Bilbo and 13 other Democrats.

Thus, any GOP motion that Bilbo not be sworn will be at the mercy of a temporary Democratic majority, whereas if the Republicans wait until everybody takes his seat they will outnumber the Democrats by six.

DE GAULLE ASSERTS HE'S NO CANDIDATE

PARIS —(AP)— Gen. Charles DeGaulle said today he would not be a candidate for president of France's new fourth republic.

The French legislature is to elect the president Jan. 16 or soon after.

In a written statement delivered to the press, the wartime leader of the Free French and first head of France's post-war provisional government said he did not believe "according to my conscience" that it would be well for him to "preside, with impotence, over the impotence of the state."

DeGaulle said he was making his statement in answer to a question put to him about his future intentions.

YMCA Chalks Up 612 Members To Pass Campaign Goal by 162

With a total of 612 new and renewed memberships, the Mansfield YMCA crossed the finish line well ahead of its 1946 campaign goal of 450 members, Richard Tucker, membership committee and drive chairman, reported today.

Final totals of the drive, started Nov. 15, gave the YMCA main office division the lead with 196 members signed up, followed closely by Harold Mansfield's school division, reporting 151 members.

Vernon Smeltzer and Franklyn Lay, heading the large industries division, reported 107 members, the retail division, led by Robert Horn and Myron Miller 92 members, and the small industrial division, headed by Charles Green and Robert Ross, reported 66 members as the drive ended.

The totals exceed the 1945 membership drive by 74 and the 1946 goal of 450 by 162.

Success of the drive was attributed by Chairman Tucker to the efforts of division heads and the approximately 75 campaign workers.

CHICAGO —(AP)— David Rayfiel, 29, has undergone an average of a blood transfusion a day for the last 50 days as an indirect result of an injury in a sandlot football game 13 years ago.

David, his father said, suffers from a type of hemophilia—a tendency to profuse bleeding.

U. S. MINIMIZING DAIREN INCIDENT

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The state department appeared to be making a strategic retreat today in its attitude toward the Russian action in ordering a U. S. Navy ship out of the port of Dairen.

Pending direct orders for U. S. officials at the Manchurian port, acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson cautiously declined to say whether he regarded the Russian order an ultimatum.

Significantly, Acheson shied away from the controversy only a day after a department spokesman, Lincoln White of the press section, said the Russian order could not be considered an ultimatum.

Acheson indicated that American consul general H. Merrell Benninghoff in Dairen has been asked for a complete report.

104,475,000 Days Lost by Strikes

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Working time lost in strikes this year will approximately triple the peak for previous record years, labor department records indicated today.

The bureau of labor statistics said stoppages during the first 11 months this year cost 104,475,000 man-days of work. The highest previous year was 1945 with 38,025,000 man-days lost. The prewar record, 28,424,000, was set in 1937.

Inquiry Launched In Cattle Disease

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The agriculture department is launching a widespread investigation to determine whether cattle imported from Mexico during the meat shortage brought any of the dread "foot and mouth" disease into U. S. livestock herds.

Dr. Severin O. Fladness, chief of the department's bureau of animal husbandry field inspection division, disclosed that spot checks are being made to locate areas into which Mexican cattle were shipped.

Fladness said that no sign of the disease has yet been reported within the United States. But he labeled the disease as "extremely contagious" and said it spreads rapidly.

Presidential Limit Bill Backed by GOP

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Leaders of the new Republican majorities in congress today planned speedy action on proposals that future presidents be limited to six or eight years in office.

Senator Butler (R-Neb) told a reporter he would "have a resolution ready to drop in the hopper" soon after congress assembles next week, making two terms the maximum presidential tenure.

House Republican leaders planned an identical step.

SHARP WARNING ISSUED TO U. N. COMMISSIONERS

Final Decision Likely Monday; Question Holds Key to Arms Cut Program.

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—(AP)—Bernard M. Baruch's sharp warning that the United States could not yield atomic bomb secrets to the world unless the veto was ruled out of any international control plan sent United Nations delegates into hotel room conferences today seeking off-the-floor agreement.

Representatives of the 12 nations on the U.N. atomic energy commission had until Monday morning, when the body goes into session for final decision, to settle this critical issue, which generally is regarded as the key to the basic arms reduction program laid down by the U.N. assembly.

Baruch's strong speech was made at a closed session of the commission last night in the midst of bitter debate over inclusion of the veto with regard to punishment of violators of a control system. The American delegate made it clear that he could not recommend senate approval of any plan including the veto.

Little Chance Seen.

Delegates saw little chance for immediate agreement, in the face of Russia's continued silence and new opposition to Baruch by France and Great Britain, and postponed the whole issue until Monday.

The early part of the nine-hour meeting had been harmonious with the remainder of the Baruch plan being adopted without ballot. Even this was far from conclusive, however, in view of Russia's refusal to participate in the discussions.

Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko was absent, because, Prof. S. P. Alexandrov tersely told reporters, he was "occupied with other business." Alexandrov sat through the whole meeting without speaking but near its end advised the chairman that he wanted to be considered "present but abstaining in full."

'Yes' or 'No' Asked.

Declaring that it was yes or no, Baruch said:

"I cannot recommend to the people of the United States, I cannot advocate before the senate of the United States, that this country surrender this potent weapon and dedicate to mankind its tremendous knowledge in the field of the production of atomic energy—in the belief that they are outlawing the use of this weapon for war and opening the gates for the use of atomic energy for the good of all mankind—under any system which is open to nullification of punishment by what can be called a subterfuge.

"All we have asked you to do is to vote in favor of the proposition that it should not lie within the power of anyone to determine by his own veto whether he or a friend is guilty and should be punished.

"Gentlemen, it is either—or. Either you agree that a criminal should have this right by voting against our position (or you fail to take a stand on the question by refraining from voting), or you vote for this sound and basic principle of enduring justice and plain common sense."
